" The trend is more and more towards interdisciplinary project teams. The tester becomes part of such teams instead of doing testing as a downstream activity. In order to integrate smoothly within such teams, testers should extend their skills beyond their core testing expertise. Communication, business analysis and requirements engineering would be very valuable knowledge areas. "

Stefan Sturm, Managing Director IREB GmbH.